The CSI Data Retrieval Service is your one-stop shop for a wealth of market data and software. Servicing everyone from individual investors to large corporations, CSI has what you need. This order form and rate schedule apply to CSI's "Personal and Private Use" accounts. They are for individual investors who wish to use CSI's Unfair Advantage[®] (UA) software, which offers data retrieval, management and analysis capabilities. For information on using CSI data for business and corporate applications, please contact CSI's Commercial Accounts representative for terms and pricing.

Your Personal and Private Use Account

A "Personal and Private Use" subscription allows you to use Unfair Advantage to process up to 49 North American futures markets, 39 single-stock futures, 69 world futures and options markets, and/or 7,500 stocks & indices or funds daily at the rates shown. These limits can be increased by paying higher monthly fees as described below. A futures or options market is defined as a specific commodity or other similar tradable offered by an individual exchange, such as LME tin or CBT gold. All markets except options are provided with five years of historical data upon subscription. A total of ten years of historical data will be provided with a one-year prepayment. One year of historical data is accessible for options. Additional historical data is available for a fee as indicated on the order form (see below or on reverse). This type of account meets the needs of most individual investors and small businesses. No sharing, networking or extensive business use is permitted. Please see the CSI License Agreement for further details. All prices subject to change without notice.

A. License Fee - Every UA subscriber must pay a non-refundable License Fee, which is based on the account type and Market Categories updated. If multiple Market Categories are chosen, the License Fees are cumulative with the exception of License Fees for the Correlation Studies. Please check the desired Market Categories and enter the appropriate License Fee for each at right. Enter your Total License Fee below.
